The Japanese Money Tree

How Investors Can Prosper from Japan's Economic Rebirth

Andrew H. Shipley

Praise for The Japanese Money Tree

“Andrew Shipley has written an enlightening, insightful, and extremely readable book on how the investment and new finance opportunities of post-bubble, post-deflation Japan are being pursued. This book is “must” reading for any student, practitioner, or professional money manager interested in contemporary Japan.”

—Allen Sinai, Chief Global Economist, Strategist & President, Decision Economics, Inc.

“Andrew Shipley provides a highly readable account of the new Japan that is finally emerging from a “lost decade” of stagnation, deflation, banking failure, and other problems. While he provides notes of caution when due, this is a tale of exciting new business opportunities that Americans should learn about.”

—Edward J. Lincoln, Director, Center for Japan-U.S. Business and Economic Studies, Stern School of Business, New York University

“Andrew Shipley, a true “connoisseur” of the Japanese economy, offers exciting insights into the “New Japan.” This new book focuses on the changes that will bring Japan to the forefront of Asia’s new century.”

—Håkan Hedström, senior strategist at Deka Investment, one of the top 3 German asset management companies

“Japan’s lost decade was bound to end, and Andrew Shipley’s book describes the efforts of those who had prepared for a new and better decade even before it was clear that the bad times would end. He focuses particularly on the ability to find Japanese companies rich in intangible assets that will give them an advantage as they compete in the global market, especially against new competitors from China and the rest of Asia. This book is important reading for investors everywhere.”

—Rich Mattione, partner, Grantham, Mayo,
Van Otterloo & Co. LLC (GMO)

“Shipley, who spent 15 years living and working in Japan, writes from an insider’s perspective and draws on revealing conversations with the country’s key economic players—both foreign and Japanese—to bring readers a knowledgeable, intimate portrait of today’s Japanese economy. Both professional money managers and savvy individual investors will gain invaluable insights on how to reap the benefits of Japan’s economic rebirth.”

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am very grateful to all the people who cooperated with me during the writing of this book. Scholars such as Akira Furukawa, Masaru Kaneko, Koichi Mera, Hiroyuki Itami, Jun Nishikawa, Thomas W. Roehl, Toshiko Takenaka, Charles Steen, Robert I. Webb, Robert F. Bruner, Eisuke Sakakibara, David E. Weinstein, Peter Duus, Michael Smitka, Christiaan Jörg, Andrew Dewit, Philip Bougen, Anthony P. D'Costa, and Niccolo Caldararo all consented to discuss their research.

I am thankful that extremely busy financiers also agreed to discuss their businesses with me. Frank Jennings, Guy Cihl, Simon A. Ross, Kirby Daley, Gareth Phillips, Sonny Kalsi, Steven P. Thomas, Yusuke Nishi, Nick Ricciardi, Peter Espig, James Fiorillo Ortega, Richard Lemmerman, Takehiro Hashimoto, Richard L. Folsom, Roy Kuan, and Seth Sulkin all kindly provided insight into their enterprises.

Masahiro Kobayashi, Masato Kawasaki, Kenichi Sato, Tatsuo Nishimoto, and Toru Okusa of Mitsubishi Estate Co., Ltd. granted interviews regarding their firm's strategy to develop the Marunouchi area. Marunouchi Heat Supply Co., Ltd. graciously allowed me to visit its underground tunnels. Yasuhiko Sakai at World Public Relations Co., Ltd, coordinated meetings with Mitsui Fudosan Co., Ltd. There I met with Hideyuki Takahashi and Masaki Kamiya, and Takashi Nakayama spoke at length about the Tokyo Mid-Town development. I would like to thank Akira Mori at Mori Trust Co., Ltd., as well. My discussions with John M. Tofflemire have always been interesting, and I appreciate his cooperation with this book project.

Nicholas E. Benes, Tom O'Sullivan, Donald B. Westmore, Abby Pratt, Hiroshi Kadota, Nobuyuki Nagata, Go Kondo, Hiroyuki Tezuka, Kozo Suzuki, Rajeev Baddepudi, Marc Goldstein, Thomas J. Byrne, Brad Glosserman, Carl Haub, Michael D. Kaminski, Masao Igarashi, Kazushi Kaneto, Gemma Kentaro, Shiochiro Chida, Kazuhiro Furuyama, Noriaki Tsuchiya, Genji Tsukatani, Richard Jerram, Takashi Hamada, Holly Bailey, and Suzannah Yip agreed to speak with me.

Robert Babbish of Thomson Financial provided valuable data regarding private equity deals and merger and acquisition activity. The cooperation of Scott Y. Ikeda, Fred F. Hirose, Korendo Shiotsuki, and Masanobu Katoh, of Fujitsu Ltd., is also very much appreciated.

Mika Fukuda in Tama City, Yuji Baba at the Ministry of Finance, and lawmaker Motohisa Furukawa consented to be interviewed. Other officials in the Japanese public sector, who requested to remain nameless, granted interviews that were extremely helpful as well.

I would like to thank my editor, Jim Boyd, for giving me the opportunity to write this book.

A special thanks goes to Brutus Cornelius, Yasunao Nakano, Masumi and Machiko Kizuka, and Hamish Ross. Chin Ong, Robert Tomkin, Paul Summerville, Andrew Morse, Herbert Donovan, Katherine Proctor, Cameron Umetsu, and Leslie Norton provided assistance.

This book would not have been possible but for the support of my wife, Laura, and our family. Patricia, Herman, Chan Ah Mui, and Josephine Goh all helped with this book. My brother Howard, a patent attorney, shared his thoughts on intellectual property.
