

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Washington, D.C., is located midway along the eastern seaboard, south of Maryland, north of Virginia. The metro area encompasses many interconnected localities, including the District of Columbia proper, seven Maryland counties, five Virginia counties, and five Virginia cities. (For comparison, the District of Columbia itself is only 67 square miles in area.)

Washington, D.C.'s primary industry—after the federal government, of course—is tourism. Other important industries include trade associations, technology, law, higher education, medicine/medical research, government-related research, and publishing.

The major commercial areas in metro D.C. are Downtown D.C.; Arlington, Virginia (Arlington County); the Dulles Corridor in Northern Virginia (Fairfax County); and the I-270 Corridor in Maryland (Montgomery County).

Downtown D.C. is often referred to as two separate areas—New Downtown and Old Downtown. New Downtown, which is north of the White House, is the location of most of D.C.'s white collar offices. To the east, the area known as Old Downtown is experiencing a renaissance as a result of the construction of the new Washington Convention Center and the MCI Center.

Arlington, Virginia, a few minutes east of D.C. over the Potomac River, is one of the largest commercial office areas in the country and is the location of Pentagon City, Crystal City, and the Rosslyn-Ballston Corridor. The largest cluster of defense contractors in the country is located just south of the Pentagon and next door to Reagan Airport, in the neighboring areas of Pentagon City and Crystal City. The Rosslyn-Ballston Corridor is a cluster of five urban centers running along the Orange Metro Line; many IT companies and military think-tanks are located here.

The Dulles Corridor in Fairfax County, Virginia, runs from Tysons Corner (just outside the Beltway) to Dulles Airport and includes Reston, Virginia. This area is known as a high-technology corridor and is the location of AOL and Dyncorp headquarters.

The I-270 Corridor in Montgomery County, Maryland, runs from Bethesda to Gaithersburg. This area is known as a high-technology area with a concentration in biotechnology companies.

The Washington, D.C., metro area is served by three airports—Dulles, Reagan, and Baltimore/Washington International (BWI)—as well as Amtrak train service. If you are heading to Downtown D.C. and Arlington, Reagan is the most convenient airport. Dulles is your best bet for locations in the Dulles Corridor and I-270 Corridor. BWI is convenient to locations on the eastern edge of the Washington, D.C., metro area, especially if you're driving against rush hour traffic.

Drive time to Washington, D.C.: 45-60 minutes (during early morning rush hour the trip can take twice as long)

Drive time to Reston: 15 minutes

Drive time to Bethesda: 45 minutes

Dulles International Airport is about 30 miles due west of Downtown Washington, D.C. (7 miles from Reston and 25 miles from Bethesda); it is accessible via the Dulles Airport Access and Toll Road.

Dulles has one main terminal building. Departures are located on the ground floor; arrivals and baggage claim are on the level below. Once past the security checkpoints in the main terminal, there are a few eateries and small shops, although the area serves primarily as the shuttle bus station for transportation to and from concourses A, B, C, and D.

The concourses are two long separate buildings with shops, services, and restaurants. The first concourse contains terminals A and B; B is the larger of the two and has most of the eateries and services. Behind concourse A/B is concourse C/D, which is the larger of the two concourse buildings and has moving walkways that run between terminals C and D. It takes about 15 to 20 minutes to walk from one end to the other of concourse C/D, and about 10 minutes to walk from one end to the other of concourse A/B.

Note that Dulles is undergoing construction of a new underground pedestrian connector that will connect the main terminal to the concourses. Until it is completed, shuttle service is the only way to get to and from the concourses.

Two daily parking garages are located close to the terminal, on the west side and the north side.

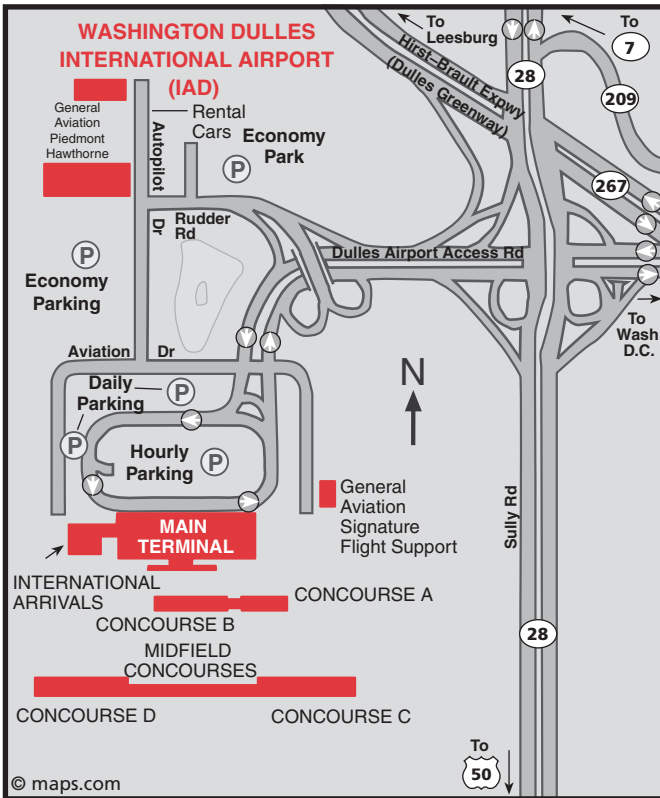

Thirty eateries are located throughout the airport, some of which provide meals you can take onboard with you. In the main terminal (pre-security) you'll find Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream, Cinnabon, Guava & Java, Lobby Bar and Café, and Pizza Hut. Post-security in the main terminal are Bits n Bites, Pizza Hut, Starbucks Coffee, T.G.I. Fridays, and Vie de France. In concourse A/C you'll find Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream, Brew Pub, Burger King, California Pizza Kitchen/ASAP, D.C. Deli, Euro Café, Great Wall, Old Dominion Brewing Co., Ranch 1, Sam's Brew House, and Starbucks Coffee. Finally, in concourse C/D are Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream, Burger King, The Grove/ICBY, McDonald's, Old Dominion Brewing Co., Panda Express, Pizza Hut, Sam's Brew House, Starbucks Coffee, T.G.I. Fridays Café, Vie de France, and Vintage Virginia Bar.

Many retailers are located at Dulles. You'll find locations of Faber News and Gifts, Hudson News, and World News throughout the airport. Waldenbooks is in the main terminal and in concourses B and D. Several jewelry and fashion retailers are located in concourse B; other retailers include the Airplane Superstore (main terminal), AltiTUNES (concourses C, D), Americal (concourses B, C, D), Brookstone (concourse B), D.C. Marketplace (main terminal), Paradies Gift Shop (main terminal), Smithsonian Museum Store (concourse B), and Wilsons Leather (concourse D). Rent-A-Cellular Business Services locations are in concourses B, C, and D. Street pricing is in effect at Dulles.

GROUND TRANSPORTATION

The ground transportation curbs are located in front of the main terminal on ground level. Most shuttle buses and vans pick up on the outer curb. The inner curb and lanes are for Washington Flyer Taxi Service. If you need help, look for the Washington Flyers Transportation aides in gray uniforms.

Taxi service from Dulles to D.C. is expensive. The SuperShuttle is a good and recommended option for the economically minded. Public transportation is considerably cheaper and during rush hour can be faster, so long as you don't miss the shuttle bus (which runs every half hour).

Rental Cars

Information screens and courtesy telephones are located on the lower level of the main terminal in the Ground Transportation Centers. Rental car shuttles run to the rental car agencies' complex a half-mile away in the northern section of the airport, next to the economy parking lots. Pick up shuttles on the outer curb outside the main terminal.

Located at the airport: Alamo, Avis, Budget, Dollar Rent-A-Car, Enterprise, Hertz, and National Car Rental

Taxis

The Washington Flyer Taxicabs (☎703.661.6655) exclusively serve Dulles International Airport. Washington Flyer aides, located outside baggage claim, will give you a ticket indicating your number in the taxi line. Taxi pickup is directly outside the main terminal on the first curb. At rush hour, the wait can be up to 10 minutes, but generally the wait time is short. Approximate one-way fares to Washington, D.C., range from $44 to $50.

Limousines

Pickup is on the outer curb in front of the main terminal.

Share-Ride Shuttles

Dulles is serviced by SuperShuttle (☎800.258.3826 www.supershuttle.com). No reservations are necessary when leaving the airport; however, when traveling to the airport, you must make a reservation at least 12 to 24 hours prior to your departure date. The cost is $24 from Dulles to the center of Washington, D.C. The SuperShuttle has a booth outside baggage claim; the shuttle pickup location is on the outer curb by the pedestrian crosswalk. Look for the SuperShuttle signs. The Shuttle leaves every 30 minutes or less. (You can usually get a van in about 5 minutes.)

Public Transportation

The Washington Flyer Coach Service (☎888.927.4359 www.washfly.com) provides shuttle service between Dulles and the West Falls Church Metrorail station (Orange Line). Shuttles pick up on the outer curb and run every 30 minutes at 15 and 45 minutes past the hour. The ride takes about 20 minutes and costs $8 one-way. The Metro ride to D.C. will take about 35 minutes and cost about $2.50. Trains run frequently.

Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport is referred to as either Reagan or National Airport. The airport is located in Arlington, Virginia, a 4 to 5 mile drive to Downtown Washington and in the backyard of Pentagon City and Crystal City.

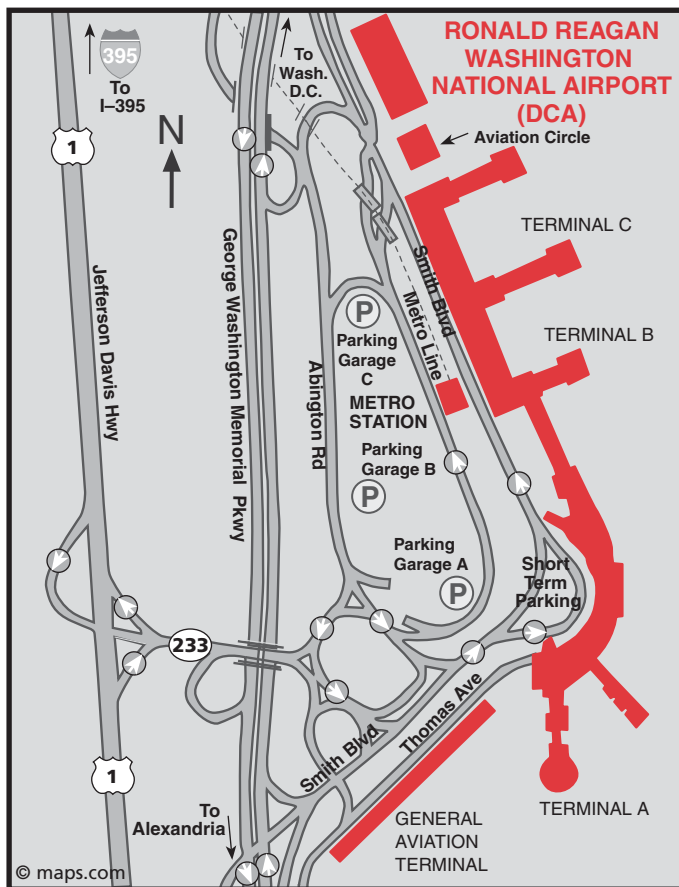

Reagan is a midsize airport, sitting on 860 acres. The airport is a long three-level building with a main concourse and two terminals—terminal A and the new terminal B/C. Terminal A is a 15-minute stroll from terminal B/C.

Baggage claim and most ground transportation are located on level 1. The main concourse is on level 2 in terminal B/C and is the location of National Hall, where the majority of eateries and shopping are located. Ticketing/checkin and passenger drop-off are on level 3. National Hall claims close to 100 shops and restaurants including ATT Simply Wireless, Brooks Brothers, California Pizza Kitchen, Legal Sea Foods, National Geographic Store, and Waldenbooks.

Some curbside checkin is available. It varies by airline due to Transportation Security Administration (TSA) restrictions, so check with your airline ahead of time.

US Airways runs hourly shuttle service out of National to New York (LGA). The Delta Shuttle flies to New York (LGA—Marine Air Terminal).

GROUND TRANSPORTATION

If you are heading to Downtown D.C., taking a taxi is your best bet; wait times are short, and the fare is reasonable. It is also your best option to Pentagon City and Crystal City.

Because there is a Metrorail station at Reagan, the Metro is a very good option for the Rosslyn-Ballston Corridor. If your location is near a stop in the Dulles Corridor or I-270 Corridor, you may also want to consider the Metro to avoid traffic and cab fare.

Ground transportation locations are outside level 1 (baggage claim) at the curbside and the second curb just yards away. The Metrorail Station is located on concourse level 2 in terminal B/C.

Rental Cars

On-airport rental car pickup/drop-off centers are located in parking garage A, on the lower level across from terminal A. You can either walk to the garage or take a courtesy airport shuttle.

Located at the airport: Avis, Budget, Dollar, Hertz, and National

Taxis

Washington, D.C.; Virginia; and Maryland taxicabs are available at the exits of each terminal. Dispatchers are available at the exits to assist passengers. The fare to the District of Columbia will run between $8 and $17, depending on the area and time of day. It will cost you about $5 to get to Pentagon City/Crystal City; $40 to Reston, VA; and $25 to Bethesda.

Red Top Cab (☎703.522.3333) provides excellent service and picks up passengers at the outer lane in front of the airport. Call Red Top before retrieving your baggage, and they will pick you up within 5 to 10 minutes. You must call Red Top for pickup service back to the airport. Red Top can only provide service to and from Virginia.

Share-Ride Shuttles

SuperShuttle(☎800.258.3826

www.supershuttle.com) operates at Reagan.

When you arrive at Reagan, head to the curb outside baggage claim and speak to a SuperShuttle representative there. The wait for the shuttle is 20 to 30 minutes.

Public Transportation

The Metrorail stops adjacent to terminals B and C at the main concourse, level 2. (Shuttle buses run between Metrorail and terminal A.) You can purchase Metrorail fare cards at either of two Farecard plazas located on level 2, near the pedestrian bridges.

Both the Blue and Yellow lines stop at Reagan. The 15-minute trip to Downtown D.C. is about $1.20 one-way. The trip to Rosslyn is about 10 minutes. It will take 40 to 50 minutes to get to locations in the Dulles and I-270 Corridors and cost up to $3.25. Trains leave the airport every 12 minutes.

Drive time to D.C.: 50 minutes

BWI is located about 10 miles south of Baltimore and 31 miles north of Washington. The airport has a series of decentralized piers and terminals. Five piers—A, B, C, D, and E (located on the upper level)—contain all airline gates. Ticketing is located just outside each pier. The piers are connected by corridor-like terminals. The lower level (ground level) contains baggage claim and all ground transportation. There are no moving walkways within the airport, and it can take 15 minutes or more to walk from one end of the airport to the other. The central terminal (lower level) contains baggage claim for B, C, and E. Terminal A is currently under construction.

The airport allows curbside checkin, but the service is dependent on each airline.

Numerous eateries are located throughout the airport, both in the terminals and piers. The piers contain mostly fast food, and each has a bar/restaurant. Retailers include 24-Hour Flowers, The Body Shop, Book Corner, Just Plane Kids, Hudson News, The Museum Company, Sunglass Hut, UV3, Vitch Versions, and Wilsons Leather.

The Sheraton International Hotel (☎410.859.3300) is located within the airport grounds. The hotel provides free shuttle service to and from the airport—about a 5-minute ride. For shuttle service call the hotel from the courtesy phone within baggage claim, and the shuttle will pick you up at your location.

AMTRAK

If you are traveling between Washington, D.C., BWI Airport, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York, Amtrak can be a much more convenient option than driving or flying. Amtrak has 10 trains that serve Washington, including Acela and Metroliner service to New York City, Philadelphia, and Boston. Depending on the train, a trip from Washington to New York Penn Station runs anywhere from 2 hours 45 minutes to 3 hours 15 minutes. Amtrak has frequent service with trains departing every 1 to 2 hours.

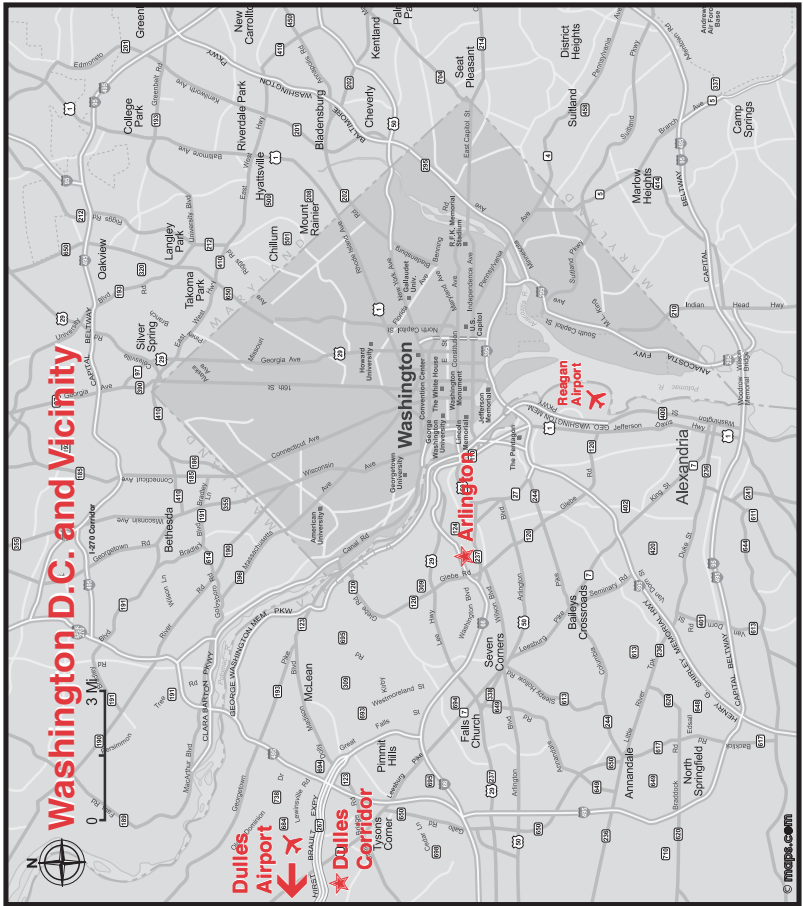

Two Amtrak stations are located in the Washington area—BWI Rail Station and WAS Washington Union Station. Both stations have cab service; BWI Rail Station is a short shuttle bus ride away from the BWI Airport and its rental car facilities. Alamo/National, Budget, and Hertz rental car companies all have locations at Washington Union Station.

GETTING AROUND

METRO WASHINGTON, D.C.

DRIVING, PARKING, AND WALKING

Washington, D.C., is an easy city to navigate. The city is divided into four quadrants: Northwest, Southwest, Northeast, and Southeast. The U.S. Capitol building marks the center where the quadrants meet. Numbered streets run north-south. Lettered streets run east-west (there are no J, X, Y, or Z streets), becoming two-syllable names, and then three-syllable names as you travel farther out from the center. Avenues named for U.S. states run diagonally, often meeting at traffic circles and squares. Locations in the Downtown area have NW as part of their address.

The city has a clean, efficient subway system (the Metro) and is small and compact enough to walk. In fact, if your business is within the city, your best bet for getting around is by foot.

Driving in D.C. can be tricky; in particular, you need to watch out for traffic circles, especially if you're not used to them. Although traffic within the circle has the right of way, D.C. drivers tend to ignore this simple rule. Make sure that you pay close attention to traffic signs; during rush hour in the downtown area (7 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. weekdays), sections of certain streets become one-way, and the traffic lanes of other streets may change direction to accommodate traffic.

Washington, D.C.; Arlington, VA; and Bethesda, MD; are circled by the Capital Beltway, a six- to eight-lane freeway made up of two separate highways—I-495 on the west and I-95/I-495 on the east. Traffic is almost always heavy in both directions on the Beltway. If you can, try to avoid the Beltway.

If you are headed to Arlington from D.C. you can take a cab or use the Metro. To get to Fairfax County or Montgomery County you will want to drive.

RULES OF THE ROAD

Washington, D.C.

The speed limit on urban interstates in Washington, D.C., is 55 m.p.h.; the speed limit is 25 m.p.h. on all other roads, unless otherwise posted. Headlights are required when visibility is less than 500 feet. Seat belts must be worn by all passengers and driver. Violations of seat belt laws are a primary offense. It is illegal to use a radar detector in Washington, D.C.

Virginia

The speed limit on Virginia interstate highways, in designated rural areas, is 65 m.p.h., and 55 m.p.h. in all other areas. It is illegal to use a radar detector in Virginia. You must use your headlights whenever you use your windshield wipers as a result of bad weather. Virginia's safety belt law requires drivers and front-seat passengers to use safety belts. Violation of the seat belt law is a secondary offense.

Maryland

The speed limit in Maryland is 65 m.p.h. on interstates and limited access roads. It is 55 m.p.h. on all other highways. You must use your headlights when you use your windshield wipers in bad weather. Maryland law requires everyone seated in the front seat to wear seat belts. Violation of the seat belt law is a secondary offense.

Maryland law is tough on aggressive drivers, with tickets, tough fines, and points—particularly for speeding, running red lights and stop signs, tailgating, and unsafe lane changes. Regular police stings on roads are coordinated with the District of Columbia and Virginia.

PARKING

In D.C., your best bet for parking is to find a parking garage. Rates run from $5/hour to $15/day. Street parking is tough; meters generally max at 2 hours, and spots may come complete with a laundry list of restrictions.

TAXIS

It's fairly easy to hail a taxi in the D.C. area. Be aware that D.C. taxi drivers can and do pick up other passengers so long as they do not have to go more than five blocks out of their way to reach your destination.

D.C. cabs operate on a zone system. If you take a trip from one point to another within the same zone, you pay $5. If your trip takes you into a second zone, the price goes up. Most cross-town fares run from $5 to $15. There are additional surcharges for rush hour, calling a cab, additional passengers, and luggage.

If you are heading to an out-of-District address (such as an airport), the fare is based on mileage. You can call ☎202.331.1671 to find out the rate between any point in D.C. and addresses in Virginia and Maryland. Call the D.C. Taxi Commission (☎202.645.6018) to get rate estimates within the District. One of the major taxi companies is Capital Cab (☎202.546.2400).

RENTAL CARS

Cars rented at the airports incur a 10% concession recovery fee. If you want to rent a car in Downtown D.C., you will find the greatest selection at Union Station at 50 Massachusetts Avenue N.E. Alamo/National, Budget, and Hertz all have locations there. Avis and Enterprise also have Downtown D.C. locations.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION

The Washington Metropolitan Transit Authority (WMATA) ☎ 202.637.7000 🌐 www.wmata.com operates five Metrorail or “Metro” lines (Red, Blue, Orange, Yellow, and Green) that run throughout D.C. and to suburban Maryland and northern Virginia. The Orange Line runs to Dulles Airport and the Rosslyn-Ballston Corridor. The Blue Line runs to Pentagon City and Crystal City. The Yellow Line runs to National Airport.

The Washington Metro is quick, cheap, and easy. Stations are identified outside by the letter “M” on top of a brown pylon. Trains in D.C. run every 5 minutes during rush hour and 10 to 12 minutes other times. One-way fares range from $1.10 to $3.25.

☎ 801 Mount Vernon Place NW, Washington, DC 20001
 🌐 www.dcconvention.com

Washington opened its new convention center in March 2003. (The old convention center will be redeveloped.) The new Washington Convention Center sits between 7th and 9th and N Street and Mt. Vernon Place in Old Downtown. The Center covers six city blocks on 17 acres and is the largest building in Washington, D.C. The Convention Center is a four-level building; exhibit halls A, B, and C are located in the lower level. Registration is at street level, off the Mount Vernon Place entrance. Exhibit halls D and E are located on level 2. The ballroom is on level 3.

The Center has advanced fiber-optic networks, state-of-the-art voice and data services, and a number of dining outlets—including Wolfgang Puck’s Express, Quizno’s, and Starbucks. The Mt. Vernon Square/Convention Center Metro stop (Green Line) is just outside the building. Taxi arrivals/departures are located at Mount Vernon Square, and shuttle bus arrivals/departures are on L Street. There is no parking at the Center. Look for lots in the immediate vicinity. Convenient hotels are the large Renaissance Washington Hotel and two boutique hotels, the Hinley Park and Morrison Park.

HOTELS

ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA

Crowne Plaza National Airport

Thirteen stories tall and renovated in 1999, this hotel provides the ultimate convenience for those flying in and out of Washington’s National Airport. You can walk one block to the airport metro station, which will connect you to all of downtown as well as outlying areas of Maryland and Virginia. And if you have a lot of bags, the hotel shuttle will pick you up and drop you off at the runways. All guest rooms are equipped with CD players, data ports, voice mail, and Internet access. Facilities such as a restaurant, health club, and swimming pool provide good value for the reasonable rates.
