on the What Really Matters Series

Introducing a NEW series
by Richard Allington and Patricia Cunningham

What matters most for your students?
Written by the authors you know and trust, each of the books in the What Really Matters series offers a concise presentation of what matters most when teaching different aspects of the reading process. With a thought-provoking rich presentation; Dick Allington and Pat Cunningham explore complex issues teachers of reading face in today’s classrooms and bring each of the topics to life—fluency, vocabulary, response to intervention, and struggling readers. Their brief and inexpensive books are written in a lively narrative with clear organization, exceptional pedagogy, and special features, including book club study guide questions. The friendly design and compact size make the books accessible, convenient, and easy-to-read.

Teach Every Student to Read with the What Really Matters Series

Develop Independent Readers

Dick and Pat’s goal, as we know is yours, is that all children become active and engaged readers while developing the proficiencies needed to be strong independent readers. For Dick and Pat, strong independent readers are active and comprehending readers. Each of the brief books in the What Really Matters series spotlights a specific subject matter that can be used to foster, develop, and nurture active and strong independent readers who read with understanding.

“[Pat’s] knowledge of words and classroom practice make a powerful combination and teachers will readily jump in and try the strategies she has proposed in [What Really Matters in Vocabulary]. Any practicing teacher will appreciate the thoroughness of explanation and the variety of strategies offered.”

— Amanda Arens, staff developer/educational consultant, Arens Consulting, Montgomery City, MO

“All schools are looking at ways to improve their school’s report card from the state… [What Really Matters in Response to Intervention] will help teachers improve their students’ reading, which in turn will improve their school report card, and improve upon the lives of the students.”

— Diana L. Carr, Elgin Junior High School, Green Camp, OH

“Once again, Allington delivers an insightful, practical book that enables the application of research to practice in the area of reading fluency. [His] years of work with teachers are reflected in his understanding of the kinds of assistance teachers need to make research-based changes in classrooms.”

— Pamela Williamson, University of Cincinnati, Ohio on What Really Matters in Fluency
