

INDEX

A

- Acer, 197–199
- “Age of addressability,” 10
- Agilent, 175
- Airbus, 216
- Anheuser Busch, 90
- Anti-globalization movement, focus on
  - cultural diversity, 4–5, 94–95
- Arcelik case example, 23–24, 67
- ASEAN, 160
- Aspire pc (Acer)/international
  - marketing organization case example, 197–199, 198f
- Assessing market potential, 27–29, 58–59
  - “bottom-up” vs. “top-down,” 39–40
  - cost of entry vs. waiting, 36f, 37
    - Vietnam case examples, 37–40, 38t
  - forecasting market sales level, 45–46
    - bottom-up forecasting, 49, 50t, 51
    - top-down forecasting, 46–47, 48t
  - framework, 33–34
    - enabling conditions, 36–37
    - Mary Kay Cosmetics example, 34–35

- market model drivers, 36
- pitfalls
  - exaggerated size/attractiveness of market, 29–31
  - over-estimation, 7, 13
  - psychic distance, 32–33
  - relying on senior executives’ contacts, 31–32
  - shareholder/competitor pressure as deciding factor, 31
- see also* First mover advantage; Market research guidelines for international markets assessment

B

- “Band Aid,” 54
- Barber, Benjamin, 5
- Bartlett, Christopher A., 199
- Bell’s, 104
- Benetton, 19, 210
- “Big bang” expansion, 87
- Birkinshaw, Julian, 196
- Blattberg, Robert, 10
- Boeing, 216
- Bosch Siemens, 23
- Brand
  - appeal, 18–19, 219
  - attitudes, 54–55

- Brand, continued
  - “country-of-origin” brands, 110–111
  - see also Global branding
- British Telecom, 174
- BRL Hardy/international marketing
  - organization case example, 195–197
- Business press, trends about market
  - globalization, 9

C

- Cable and Wireless, 173
- CAGE framework, 43–44
- Calvin Klein, 111
- Carrefour, 19
- Cavusgil, S. Tamer, 206
- China
  - and Disney, 76
  - and Ford, 31
  - joint venture permits restrictions, 55
  - underperformance of market
    - assessment, 27, 28
- Chocos brand, 82
- Christian Dior, 111
- Citigroup, 19
- CNN, 19
- Coca-Cola, 111
  - decision structures, 204
  - distribution channels, 129
  - global marketing position, 9, 97, 114–1165
  - and local tastes, 84, 112
- Colgate Palmolive, 82
- Country-market data, 33, 35
- Craig, C. Samuel, 85

D

- Daft, Douglas, 9, 98, 114–115
- Dawar, Niraj, 78f
- Deighton, John, 10
- DHL, 19, 211
- Disco, 104
- Disney, 111, 210
  - licensing practices, 76

- Distribution issues, 129–131, 152–153
  - differences between international and domestic contexts, 139
  - evolutionary perspective, 141, 142f, 143
  - linkage of marketing functions with distributor in international marketing, 15–16, 139–140
  - multimarket decisions, 140–141
  - rapid business growth, 140
- distributor crisis, 136–137
  - ambition limitations in distributor, 138–139
  - marketing investment shortfall, 137–138
  - strategic marketing deficiencies, 137
- guidelines/international distributor
  - life cycle management, 143–145, 144f
  - clear partnership goals for distributor, 146–147
  - detailed market and financial performance data access, 147
  - link national distributors, 148
  - marketing strategy
    - responsibility ownership, 145
    - resource commitment for market entry, 145–146
  - international distribution lifecycle, 131–136, 132f
  - local distributors/long-term prospects, 149–151
  - “typical distributor,” 14
- “Dot-com” boom and bust, 7
  - “eyeballs” as market potential, 47
  - market-size optimism, 13
- Douglas, Susan P., 85, 94
- Dow, 158
- Drivers of internationalization, 17, 18f
  - company, 21
  - industry, 20

market
 business customers, 19
 consumers, 17–19
 distribution channels and communication media, 19–20
 others (distinct objectives/strategic stakes), 21
 economies of scale, 21
 leverage differentiation, 22 local profit maximization, 21 offense as defense, 22–23 play in lead markets, 22
see also Arcelik case example

E

Electrolux, 173–174
 Elle, 210
 Entry/development strategies for international markets, 62–63, 85, 88, 218–219
 localization, 83–85, 89–90
 long-term planning issues, 89 market entry modes, 69–70, 71f, 77–78
 export/import and trading companies, 71–72
 franchising, 74–75
 licencing, 75–77
 “piggybacking,” 72–73 market expansion strategies, 79–80 mass marketing mindset, 79
 objectives, 66–67
 competitive attack/defense, 68
 learning in lead markets, 67–68, 78–79
 scale economies/marketing leverage, 68–69
 “top-line obsession,” 62
 typical approach, 61
 Ericsson
 global account relationship example, 172–173
 support network for global account managers, 178

F

F&P Gruppo, 72
 Federal Express, 19
 First mover advantage, 51–52 and brand attitudes, 54–55
 vs. “fast follower,” 52–54
 and service businesses, 209–210
 sources in emerging markets, 55 government relations, 55–56
 learning, 57–58
 marketing productivity, 57 marketing resources, 57
 pent-up demand, 56
 Ford, 31, 112
 Ford, Henry, 81
 “Foreign investment profitability gap,”
 2, 12, 13f
 Freeman, David, 133

G

Gallo brand, 72
 The Gap, 19
 Ghadar, Fariborz, 8, 62
 Ghemawat, Pankaj, 8, 27, 62
 CAGE framework, 43–44
 Ghoshal, Sumatra, 199
 Gillette, 216
 Gillette, King, 21
 Global account management (GAM),
 155–157, 161–162,
 183–184
 consequences, 162, 163t, 164
 pitfalls, 164–165
 research, 168–170 guidelines, 170
 balance of power assessment, 170–173, 172f
 customer as strategic partner, 173–175
 strategic selection, 170
 implementation, 175–176
 management selection issues, 177–179
 realistic incentive structure, 177
 team goals, 176

- Global account management (GAM),
continued
 organization design, 165–166, 166f case studies, 166–168 trend growth, 158–159
 customer focus, 160
 and global procurement initiatives, 159
 information technology impacts, 159
 regional trading blocks, 160 sophisticated arbitrage networks, 160
see also International price harmonization
- Global branding, 108–110, 125–127 benefits to companies, 102–103 convergence in marketing systems, 99–100
 marketing economies of scale, 100–101
 organizational benefits, 101–102 benefits to consumers, 103, 107–108 conspicuous consumption
 issues, 106–107
 foreign origin/quality linkage, 103–105, 105f
 international customers,
 105–106
 “country of origin” brands, 110
 debate, 93–96
 locally adapted product/positioning, 110 policy guidelines, 113 allow for evolution of brand position, 117–119
 buy globally/sell locally
 organizational model, 122–125
 global brand policies for new brands, 120–122, 120f levels and meaning considerations, 113–117, 114f
 separate brand/product policy, 119 scorecard, 109t trends, 96–99
 variability (product/brand), 111–113
see also Brand
- “Global chess game,” 65
- Global customer management see Global account management
- Global marketing management/local level, 1, 3–4, 25, 95–96, 221–222
- Globalization, 2
 benefits, 3, 65
 “born global,” 87, 206–209 and company growth, 1 and consumer demand for global brands, 7, 94
 as a reactive process, 155
see also Market globalization
- Gucci shoes, 96, 107
- ## H
- Häagen-Dazs, 205
 Heineken, 90, 118–119, 118f
 Henkel, 119, 120f, 133, 216
 Herfindahl Index, and research in industry concentration, 8
 Hewlett Packard, global account program case example, 177
 Hoff, Edward J., 204
 Honda cars, 96
 “Hoover,” 54
 HSBC, 19
- ## I
- IBM, 73
 Information technology impact on marketing, 1–2, 10
 and global account management, 159
 and interactive marketing process, 11
 Interactive marketing, 10

- International distribution vs. globalization, 2
  - International marketing
    - challenges, 3–4
      - evolutionary perspective, 17
      - underperformance issues, 12–13
    - characteristics, 2, 15, 63
      - hierarchical decision levels, 64
      - marketing functions linked with distributor, 15–16, 65–66
      - multimarket decisions, 16–17, 64–65
      - rapid business growth, 16, 63–64
    - common mistakes, 13
      - lack of commitment, 14
      - mismanagement of local partners, 14
      - misreading market development patterns, 14–15
      - overestimation of market potential, 13
    - consumer perspective, 4–5, 17–19
    - and global supplier-customer relationship, 156
    - management focus, 221–222
    - social damage claims, 5–6, 11
    - see also* Drivers of internationalization; Entry/development strategies for international markets; Management issues in international marketing; Marketing strategies evolution (international markets); Organizational challenge/international marketing
  - International price harmonization, 161
    - local variation, 182–183
    - pressures, 179–180
    - pricing policy framework, 181–182, 181f
- J
- Jollibee, 97
  - Jordan, Michael, 96
- K
- Kapferer, Jean-Noel, 122
  - Kellogg, mass marketing case example, 81–82
  - Kelly's Revenge, 196
  - Kentucky Fried Chicken (KFC), learning from Chinese market experience, 58
  - Knight, Gary A., 206
  - Koc Holdings, 23, 67
- L
- Learning
    - in lead markets, 67–68, 78–79
    - “learning organizations,” 3
    - “reverse” from emerging markets, 57–58
  - “Learning organizations,” 3
  - Levi's, 111, 117
  - Levitt, Theodore, 94–95
  - Localization, 84–85, 94
    - early development of, 89–90
    - and global brand name, 110
    - local tastes, 6
    - in service businesses, 211–212
  - Loctite Corporation, 133
- M
- McDonald's
    - international marketing approach, 12–13, 74, 75, 116–117
    - McTikka and Big Maharajah, 110
    - and Jollibee, 97
  - Mach 3, 120
  - McVan Model, 84–85
  - McWorld, 5

- Management issues in international marketing, 215, 221–222
    - commitment and control relationship, 217–218
    - control vs. standardization with scale, 219
    - country-level data and product-market development differences, 220–221
    - entry vs. development strategy, 218–219
    - market knowledge vs. marketing knowledge, 90, 216–217
  - Market fragmentation, 1, 10
    - vs. mass marketing, 80–81
    - see also* “Segment of one”
  - Market globalization, evidence, 8–9
  - Market research guidelines for international markets
    - assessment, 40
    - parallel markets usage, 44–45, 45f
    - type of data gathered, 41–44
    - type of data gathering intermediary, 40–41
  - Marketing innovation
    - bottom-up approach, 204–205
    - horizontal information flows, 205–206
  - Marketing strategies evolution
    - (international market), 85, 86f, 87–88, 91–92
    - local/regional marketing programs, 89–90
    - long-term planning at market entry, 89
    - market entry commitment, 88
  - Marlboro, 111
  - Marriott, 75
  - Mars bar, 112
  - Mary Kay Cosmetics, 34
    - bottom-up forecasting case example, 49, 50t, 51
    - customized indicators, 42
    - market assessment framework case example, 34–35
    - top-down forecasting case example, 47, 48t
  - Mass marketing, 10, 79–80
    - in developed economies, 2
    - economic compromises, 10–11
    - in emerging markets, 83
    - information compromises, 11
    - Kellogg case example, 81–82
    - and service businesses, 210–211
    - see also* Localization
  - MasterCard
    - organizational model for global brand promotion, 122–125, 125f
    - World Cup sponsorship, 219
  - Mattel, 210
  - Mercosur, 160
  - Midway, 210
  - Milky Way, 112
  - Minolta, 73
  - MTV, 19
- N
- NAFT, 160
  - NCR, 205
  - Nestlé, 28, 98
    - decision structures, 204
  - Network organizations see Organizational challenge/international marketing
  - Nike, 87–88
-
- Open markets, benefits, 7
  - Organizational challenge/international marketing, 185, 212–214
    - BRL Hardy case example, 195–197
    - design principles, 202
    - decision structures as design drivers, 203–204
    - global overview of product lines/brands, 203

- evolution of organizational structure, 187–189
    - variations, 189–190
  - horizontal and vertical processing, 192–195
    - problems, 193f, 194–195
  - issues, 186
  - matrix structure, 188f, 190–192
  - network organizations, 199–200, 201f
    - features, 200–201
    - and marketing operations fit, 202
- P
- Pelé, 96
  - Perrier, 117
  - Price corridors, 180
  - Procter & Gamble (P&G), 20, 31, 52, 98, 116, 158–159
    - distribution channels, 129
    - McVan Model, 84–85
    - matrix structure, 191–192
    - price corridor case example, 180–181
  - Product-market data, 33, 35
    - enabling conditions, 36–37
    - marketing model drivers, 36
  - “Psychic distance,” 32–33
- Q
- Quelch, John A., 204
- R
- Replication strategy, 68–69
  - Rolex, 107
  - Royal Ahold, 19
  - Rugman, Alan, 8–9
- S
- San Pellegrino, 117
  - Saudi Arabian ice cream market case example, 28–29, 220
  - “Segment of one,” 1–2
    - as natural future development, 11
  - Sensor, 120
  - Service organizations
    - internationalization, 209
    - localization, 211–212
    - mass market enablers, 210–211
  - Sesame Street, 210
  - Shell, Retail Visual Identity (RVI), 173
  - Sony, 216
    - car navigation systems first-mover strategy, 53–54
  - South African Breweries, 82
  - Stopford and Wells stage model (1972), 187
- T
- Tedlow, Richard, 80–81
  - Templeton Global Performance Index, 12
  - 3M, 173, 174, 183
  - Thums Up, 115
  - Timberland, 117
  - Trotman, Alex, 31
- U
- Unilever, 28, 52, 82, 97, 98
  - U.S. Commerce Department, “Big Emerging Market’s Policy,” 30
- W
- Wal-Mart, 19, 20
  - Weight Watchers, 75
  - Whirlpool, 189
  - Wind, Yoram, 94
  - “World citizen” argument, 18
  - World Cup 2002 (soccer), 96, 122