

Examining the Apps That Came with Your Phone

Your phone came with several apps already installed. This helps you get up and running quickly, without having to first download what are really essential apps.

There are three types of preinstalled apps found on most phones. You will find apps installed by Samsung (the manufacturer of your phone), including those that are built into the Android operating system. There also apps provided by Google, the developer of the Android operating system. And, in many cases, you'll find apps provided by your mobile carrier. You probably don't need or want them all, but it's good to know what's there. You can find all of these apps on the Apps screen.

Discover Apps from Your Mobile Carrier

Most wireless carriers install some of their own apps on your new Samsung phone. For example, AT&T installs its own Locker, Mail, Messages, and Navigator apps (among others). Verizon installs its own Cloud, Messages, Navigator, and Voice Mail apps. You get the idea.

Most mobile carriers configure their apps to be the default apps on your phone. You can easily switch to using other similar apps, of course, following the instructions detailed earlier in this chapter. You may like your carrier's apps, or you may prefer alternate apps that perform the same functions. You're not required to use your carrier's apps; you can use the apps you want.

Discovering Other Fun and Useful Apps

What kind of apps can you install on your new Galaxy S6 or S6 Edge? The sky's the limit—although there are some apps that are more popular than others, especially with more mature users.
